Legacy Building Specialties Announces St. Croix Stoves Now Available

Home Delivery of Economic Wood Pellet Fuel also Available

Granby, CO (November 11, 2008)—Legacy Building Specialties now carries “Simply the most reliable” St. Croix Pellet Stove. Despite the extremely high demand for these deluxe, energy-efficient heating sources and the freeze St. Croix has issued on selling to new dealers, Legacy Building Specialties has received a limited supply available now. In conjunction with the pellet stoves, Legacy now offers home delivery of wood pellet fuel, supplied by local Rocky Mountain Pellet Company, Inc. based in Walden.

“With winter approaching, now is the time to consider an alternative heat source that is a good investment, increases the warmth of your home, reduces your monthly heating expense, and is good for the environment” explains Tom Pierro, owner of Legacy Building Specialties. “St. Croix stoves are a clean alternative to the traditional wood stove,” adds Pierro. “We were fortunate to be able to bring in three units of the Hastings model, which can heat a space from 800 square feet to 1800 square feet and holds 40 pounds of fuel,” explains Pierro. The St. Croix stoves include digital controls for ease of operating, a self-ignition feature that makes lighting the stove a breeze, and a self-cleaning grate system. The stoves are also easy to fill with top-loading pellet hoppers. Plus, the stoves are equipped with quiet motors and fans. Make the fire more realistic with the optional ceramic log feature. Designed to burn premium economic wood pellets, these stoves enable users to burn local renewable resources. Reduce your monthly heating costs, reuse our beetle-kill trees, and increase the enjoyment of your home with a cast-iron wood stove made for today's living. Of course, installation and service programs are also available.

For the first time ever, Legacy sells and delivers wood pellet fuel by the ton. Sourced from Rocky Mountain Pellet Company, Inc., based in Walden, CO, the wood pellets are created from more than 1.5 million acres of dead Lodge pole pine trees in our nearby forests. Due to better production equipment, the pellets have low moisture content and better compression which increases overall stove performance. Not only are Rocky Mountain Pellets a renewable fuel and have a zero carbon foot print, they are also good for your pocket book. Effective July 1, 2008, the State of Colorado created a sales tax exemption on Beetle Wood Products. This means that you don't pay the 2.9% sales tax, allowing you to save even more money.

"Adding the energy-efficient St. Croix stove line and Rocky Mountain Pellet Company to the Legacy product offerings is just one more way that we're helping the community make the most of their hard-earned dollars," Pierro explains. Another way Legacy is helping residents save money is the 2% discount for customers paying with cash or check.

Visit Legacy Building Specialties new location at 78491 U.S. Highway 40 in The Village Center in Winter Park. Or, visit the main showroom at 17 Ten Mile Drive in Granby to check out their full product line-up. "Shop at our stores, where we value your business," promises Pierro.
